INTP

“The Scientist”

I N T P = I Need To Ponder

INTP's are quiet, thoughtful, analytical individuals who tend to spend long periods of time on their own, working through problems and forming solutions.

They generally balk at attempts by others to convince them to change. They also tend to be impatient with the bureaucracy, rigid hierarchies, and the politics prevalent in many professions.

INTP's organize their understanding of any topic by articulating principles, and they are especially drawn to theoretical constructs.

Characteristics

- Live in the world of theoretical possibilities.
- INTPs are driven to build knowledge.
- Do not like to lead or control people.
- Usually not in-tune with people's feelings.

Possible Careers

Engineer, College Professor, Psychologist, Researcher, Scientist

Famous INTPs

Charles Darwin, Albert Einstein, Tina Fey, Carl Jung, Larry Page, Jimmy Wales

When the test is over, you're given one of the personality types with a full description of what it means, including strengths and weaknesses, career paths, workplace habits, romantic relationships, and friendships that your personality type normally possesses. Usually, the more detailed the questions and the longer the test, the more solid your result will be. Do you ever wonder what personality type you have? This is why INTJs have a tiny circle of friends. When finished with the first 60 questions, you can complete the test to see your score or you can take some additional questions for a more accurate result. They are utterly baffled at the beginning of their relationships, and they see their relationship as something that needs strategy and guidance. Psych Central shows how you score in each of these areas and then provides an explanation of what each trait means. The workplace environment is where they feel at home and show a genuine interest in achieving their goals. When they take up leading positions, they show an excellent example of leadership and goal-oriented focus. You'll rarely find an INTJ conforming to the commonly accepted dating rituals. When the test is over, you're given a value within a range, like between extrovert and introvert, and judging and perceiving. However, not any job can make them feel productive and fulfilled, nor will it allow them to use their talents. A seemingly tangled abstraction for many is a systematic network of solutions for INTJs, which is where they dominate. INTJs would never agree on spending time or energy on random people or individuals they consider inferior. "Don't compare yourself with anyone in this world...if you do so, you are insulting yourself." -Bill Gates. Other tests are based on work by Carl Jung and other psychologists. © HumanMetrics This test, called "Jung Typology Test," has 64 yes/no-style questions all listed on one single page, which makes it easy to review your answers before submitting them. You'll also see careers and celebrities that match up with your personality type. Climbing the corporate ladder might be difficult for them, as they might struggle to obey rules and following procedures. Once your answers have been scored, you'll be told your personality type with percentages explaining which way you sway more, such as Sensing over Intuition or Perceiving over Judging. © Truity Psychometrics LLC There are more than 100 questions in this test. Your results are separated into over a dozen parts like personality type, openness, big five overview, and infographic, which gives you lots of easy-to-read information about your personality. When finished, you can view your results online with the option to build a user account to keep track of them. You might take a free online personality test to match a specific career with your personality, to learn more about yourself, or even just to compare results with friends. The answer categories range from inaccurate to neutral to accurate. Instead, iPersonic's personality test has you choose one of two groups of characteristics. Awkward and chaotic might be the two words that describe INTJ in a relationship. © Keirse.com The Keirse Temperament Sorter has a total of 70 questions, each with two options to choose between. 123test has a free personality test that tests you for the Big Five personality traits - openness, conscientiousness, extraversion, agreeableness, and neuroticism. After all, they intentionally avoid gatherings, gossip, small talks, and the usual stuff. Lots of information is available after the test to give you details about your personality and what it all may mean for you. Other ones are short and will give you answer in just a few minutes. A few of these free personality tests are very detailed and may take quite a while to complete. These are usually long term friendships based on mutual interest, common values, and agreed recognition of their strengths and flaws. Tip: To get results for more than just your personality type - including Multiple Intelligences, Learning Styles, and Brain Hemispheres - enable those results before the test begins. In addition to sharing your results via a personal link, you can use 41 Questions' Relationship Compatibility Match to see how well your personality relates to a friend's. introversion and thinking vs. There are 120 statements that you read and then answer strongly disagree, disagree, neutral, agree, and strongly agree. Each question asks you to finish a sentence with one of two answers. What they dismiss, though, is the most important ingredient of any relationship- expressing love and romance. After you're finished with the test you'll find out what personality type you fit into. They prefer to think about love rather than showing affection. Plus, a link to your results page will be shown so you can share it. INTJs don't necessarily require top positions, but jobs that will enable them to develop new theories and principles with the possibility to put them into action. When it comes to expressing love and affection, INTJs are stiff and rigid, but in the way they communicate with their children and the constant flow and guidance they provide, they make sure their children know they are loved. Free personality and IQ tests available online ask you a series of questions and then tell you how your personality falls into different categories. feeling. This is a moderate length test and will take you around 15 minutes to complete. This creates your 4-letter personality type, like INTJ, which means "strategist." The results also tell you what percentage of the population has the same personality type you have, as well as careers and celebrities who share your same personality type. You'll also be told your 4-letter personality type based on Carl Jung's and Isabel Briggs Myers' psychological types. "No matter how hard the loss, defeat might serve as well as victory to shake the soul and let the glory out." - Al Gore. Like some of the others on the list, it assesses your personality based on Briggs Myers' 16 personality types, measuring where you fall in areas like thinking vs feeling and sensing vs intuition. Questions are set up so you gauge how strongly you relate to various things, as well as how often you possess certain feelings. The following are the most common INTJs' hobbies and interests: Cultural events Exploration trips Computer games Reading Visiting new places Taking classes Learning new skills Swimming Tennis Running INTJ Interactions and Behaviors INTJs are not the most popular people in their surroundings, but they rarely feel bad about it. However, thanks to their inborn intelligence, they quickly find a way to stand out and move up. © 41Q Just as it would seem, there are 41 questions you must complete to finish this personality test. INTJs are independent and don't normally let others interfere with their opinions. Jobs and Career Paths of INTJs When it comes to INTJs jobs and career paths, they would never get satisfied with any job. The results of this personality test are based on the "Five Factor Model" of personality, which reveals how you score when it comes to Extroversion, Agreeableness, Conscientiousness, Neuroticism, and Openness. However, since challenges motivate Architects, they are more than willing to learn how to raise their children into self-reliant adults with critical thinking skills. There are a total of 50 questions and each can be answered in one of a few ways, such as disagree strongly, agree on a little, or agree strongly, among others. © Seemypersonality.com There are 60 questions in this free personality test, which takes approximately 5 minutes to complete. For example, one question asks "Would you say you are more:" and the options include "easy-going" and "serious and determined". 10 Best Jobs & Careers for INTJs It is true that INTJs can do any job with remarkable success. Like some of these other tests, this one has five multiple choice answers for each question, including strongly agree, neither agree nor disagree, and strongly disagree. Architects love to put complex theories into practice, and no other personality type is better than them. © iPersonic This is a unique personality test when compared to the others on this list because it doesn't ask you dozens of specific questions. This test is presented in a way where you just have to choose between two options. The best work occupations for INTJs include jobs that allow them to rely on their own skills without having to get involved in teamwork. It might take anywhere from 10 to 15 minutes. The Architects' ideal working atmosphere would be structured, efficient, and competent, surrounded by knowledgeable colleagues who are productive and take the initiative to implement new ideas, concepts, or systems. © Psych Central Just enter your age, gender, and country to get started with this test at Psych Central. INTJs despise nepotism, connections, and networking to gain undeserved merits, which can get them into conflict with their co-workers or managers. Compassionate Eye Foundation/DigitalVision/Getty Images This free personality test has 60 questions used to identify you as having one of 16 different personality types. "Quiet people have the loudest minds."— Stephen Hawking. Some of these personality tests are based on the Myers Briggs personality test, which consists of 16 personality types and considers such traits as extraversion vs. "The worst thing that can happen in a democracy-as well as in an individual's life-is to become cynical about the future and lose hope: that is the end, and we cannot let that happen." - Hillary Clinton. After entering your gender, name, email, and a password, the test is scored and shows your personality result. Guardian is one example of what you might see on your results page. Parenting can be a real challenge for INTJs, particularly during the first few years of their children. INTJs will give their best to guide their children with age-appropriate rules, always making sure that they are clear enough to be understood. They completely ignore everything that might distract them from their objective and often find ways to promote and reward effectiveness, initiative, and innovation. A table shows which direction your personality points in categories like Mind, Energy, and Identity, such as Extroverted/Introverted, Intuitive/Observant, Assertive/Turbulent, and others. Just enter your unique "formula" from the results page, and have your friend do the same. In a way, they could set an example of a model employee if it wasn't for their harsh criticism and the high standards they set. The following list of jobs indicates the most recommended ten work occupations for INTJs. Project Manager Systems Engineer Marketing Strategist Military Strategist System Analyst Scientist Financial Advisor Accountant or Auditor Political Scientist Software Developer Common Hobbies and Interests for Myers Briggs INTJs INTJs love exploring new things and researching the unknown, so most of their hobbies include activities that are mind-engaging and stimulate learning. If they are at the beginning of their career, they could struggle with authorities. © Personality Max Personality Max's test should take about 10 minutes to complete, has 76 questions, and gives you completely free results when finished. Just read through the traits, and if the majority of them apply to you more than the traits in the other column, choose "This applies more to me." There's a total of four questions in this test, so it takes only a few moments to finish, after which you're given your personality type and several paragraphs explaining what it means in general terms as well as when focusing on a career. However, INTJs need to understand that to create a long-term relationship, they need to give their share and find a way to support their partner. Since you have to make a user account to see your results, you can view your profile to find a free report that explains what your personality means and dig into other things like core characteristics. Since the most peculiar characteristic of INTJs' personality is finding meaning in facts and inventive solutions for difficult problems, they look for occupations that allow them to shine. INTJs are honest, diligent workers who stand out with their creative wit and thinking outside the box. Famous INTJs You Might Know The list of famous INTJs include inventors, high-achievers, famous writers, politicians, entrepreneurs, and influencers, such as: Bill Gates - software developer/business magnate Stephen Hawking - theoretical physicist, scientist, author Sir Isaac Newton - scientist, inventor Isaac Asimov - novelist Hillary Clinton - politician "If you want something done right, you'd better do it yourself." - Napoleon Bonaparte. Even though INTJs might be baffled by emotionally needy children, they will give their best to establish an honest and sensible connection based on love and respect. 16personalities results include a special URL you can share with others to compare results. They'd rather skip anything that doesn't appear logical and won't indulge in senseless (for them) activities just to impress their partner. Questions are framed so you have seven ways to answer each of them, such as agree, neutral, or disagree, with options between them to be even more specific. For example, one of the questions reads "When around other people, I..." and you must choose either "start a conversation" or "keep to myself." The results page shows four areas of a personality and indicates the ones you're more prone to be, such as judging over perceiving, and sensing over intuition. You'll get many more questions with each additional test type, up to over 200 for all four.
